Why the Shift to Direct Payments Is Bullish for U & APP

Direct payment adoption for in-app purchases is rising, as mobile apps and games seek to avoid 30% app store fees. We expect developers to reinvest a large portion of savings into paid user acquisition, with every 5% reduction in payment fees driving 19%/5% EBITDA upside at U/APP.

Key Takeaways

- U and APP could benefit from direct payments adoption in the mobile game/app economy, as developers seek to avoid 30% platform fees on in-app purchases
- If fees go down, we expect developers to reinvest a large portion of savings into paid user acquisition, driving U and APP's network businesses
- We estimate that every 5% reduction in fees would drive 19% upside to U's EBITDA and 5% upside to APP's EBITDA in '27
- U's Commerce offering also opens the opportunity to capture payment processing revenue directly, with every 10% penetration driving 20% upside to '27 EBITDA
- From here we are watching for continued adoption of DTC and incremental user acquisition spend as we expect DTC to continue scaling beyond early adopters

Mobile Ad Tech Could Capture More Value as Direct Payments Gain Adoption: As we wrote in Direct Payments Are Inflecting...and Why That's Bullish for the App Economy, we see growing evidence that app-based businesses like mobile games are circumventing 30% app store fees and driving higher gross margins via direct payment processing. The positive implications for companies like RBLX, PLTK, and TTWO are clear, with trendsetters like PLTK driving 39% of 1Q:26 via direct payments vs. 25% in 1Q:25. However, we also believe that mobile ad tech businesses like U and APP are positioned to benefit from that shift, both directly and as app-based businesses put incremental gross profit into paid marketing.

We Expect A Reduction in Payment Fees (From Any Source) Would Create a Significant Tailwind for Ad Techs like U and APP... Any reduction in payments fees would create a significant tailwind for mobile ad tech players like U as well as APP. Whether via direct payments or even lower fees from the app stores, we expect the mobile game industry would reinvest a large portion of any incremental gross profit into paid user acquisition. This would create a second-order tailwind for ad techs like U and APP, as leaders in the in-game (and in-app) advertising space. We see this dynamic as particularly constructive for U, as the company would benefit from tailwinds to ad spend, while also retaining the opportunity to participate in payment processing economics directly via its Commerce business (more on this below).

...and Every 5% Reduction in Fees Could Translate to 19% Upside to U EBITDA and 5% Upside to APP EBITDA in '27: For each 5% reduction in platform fees from any source, we estimate that 50% of publisher savings will be reinvested into marketing. That translates to $2.6bn of incremental gross ad spend at the mobile game industry level (ex-China) for every 5% fee reduction. While we provide a full sensitivity below, we estimate that this would result in 19% upside to U's '27 EBITDA and 5% upside to APP's '27 EBITDA for every 5% reduction in processing fees.

Exhibit 4: We estimate that every 5% reduction in app store fees would drive an Incremental $945mn in Mobile Ad Tech industry revenue, assuming 50% of that incremental revenue is reinvested as marketing spend.

U Is Also Addressing That Opportunity Directly With Its Commerce Product, Where Every 10% Adoption Could Drive 20% Upside to '27 EBITDA: As we detailed here, U's Commerce offering (in partnership with Stripe) is a free, out-of-the-box solution for mobile game developers to adopt direct payments. This could allow U to not only drive adoption and gather valuable purchase data, but also participate directly in the payments economics by taking a cut of the processor's fee. We estimate that every 10% of global (ex-China) in-game purchases U captures would drive 20% upside to '27 EBITDA. While scale of future adoption remains a key uncertainty, we are encouraged that U plans to launch Commerce in 2Q:26, with key partners like SciPlay and Voodoo already in place.

Exhibit 7: We estimate that every 10% of in-game transactions processed via U's Commerce solution would drive 20% upside for '27e EBITDA.

The ad network business accelerates meaningfully and grows in line with the market. Total revenue grows at a LDD % CAGR through '27. Adj. EBITDA margins rise to ~33% by '27, as scale drives significant operating leverage.		24x Base Case 2027E EBITDA Following successful execution against restructuring plans, the company drives revenue growth at a HSD % CAGR through '27. Traction for the engine is modest outside of the core gaming opportunity, while the ad network business grows below market rate. Adj. The engine sees little to no adoption outside of gaming. The ad network loses share as competition intensifies. Macro weakness weighs on both business segments. Total revenue grows at a LSD % CAGR through '27. Adj. EBITDA margins remain <35% as platform investments weigh on profitability.

BULL CASE $1,100.00

29x Bull Case 2027E EBITDA

AppLovin accelerates share gains in the ad network and sees limited impact from macro headwinds. New pools of ad spend outside gaming begin to leverage APP more aggressively. AppLovin drives continued share gains in the ad network business despite macro uncertainty. Non-gaming ad verticals scale at a steady pace. Total revenue grows at a ~30% CAGR through 2027. Scale drives leverage across the cost structure, leading EBITDA margins to exceed 80% in 2027.

BEAR CASE $200.00

Ad network growth slows more than expected as APP's competitive edge wanes and macro weighs heavily on the business. Non-gaming verticals fail to achieve significant scale. Total revenue grows at a ~14% CAGR through 2027. Limited growth drives more modest operating leverage, leading EBITDA margins to dip below 77% by 2027.

ratings used in Morgan Stanley Research. In addition, since Morgan Stanley Research contains more complete information concerning the analyst's views, investors should carefully read Morgan Stanley Research, in its entirety, and not infer the contents from the rating alone. In any case, ratings (or research) should not be used or relied upon as investment advice. An investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances (such as the investor's existing holdings) and other considerations.

Global Stock Ratings Distribution

(as of May 31, 2026)

The Stock Ratings described below apply to Morgan Stanley's Fundamental Equity Research and do not apply to Debt Research produced by the Firm.

For disclosure purposes only (in accordance with FINRA requirements), we include the category headings of Buy, Hold, and Sell alongside our ratings of Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight. Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold, and sell but represent recommended relative weightings (see definitions below). To satisfy regulatory requirements, we correspond Overweight, our most positive stock rating, with a buy recommendation; we correspond Equal-weight and Not-Rated to hold and Underweight to sell recommendations, respectively.

Stock Rating Category	Coverage Universe		Investment Banking Clients (IBC)			Other Material Investment Services Clients (MISC)
	Count	% of Total	Count	% of Total IBC	% of Rating Category	Count	% of Total Other MISC

Underweight/Sell	551	15%	86	9%	16%	201	12%
Total	3,667		920			1632

Data include common stock and ADRs currently assigned ratings. Investment Banking Clients are companies from whom Morgan Stanley received investment banking compensation in the last 12 months. Due to rounding off of decimals, the percentages provided in the "% of total" column may not add up to exactly 100 percent.
